

A tour of the mobile internet gear and data plans that keep us connected as both RVers and US coastal cruisers aboard our boat. 5G to KILL THEM ALL OFF ANYWAYS..... Good!!!

We've been working remotely online since 2006, and have learned a lot about mobile internet options. And we've tried just about everything over the years.

So much so, we made it our jobs and host the Mobile Internet Resource Center as our income source now.

Cherie & Chris have been full time technomads since 2006. In the winter we explore land in our 1961 GM 4106 bus conversion. In the spring/summer we move aboard our 1999 Bayliner 4788 slowly exploring America's waterways along the Great Loop.

We share for fun in our spare time and our travelogue content is supported by our Patrons at <http://www.patreon.com/Technomadia>.

We love sharing a slice of our life with others at <http://www.technomadia.com>, Facebook and Instagram. Want to come share more behind the scenes, you can also join us on Patreon. We use the name 'Technomadia' in all those places. Come join the adventure however you choose!

We have full time jobs that fund our adventures (this channel is our fun after-hours hobby space). Our career is running <http://www.MobileInternetInfo.com> - where we track mobile internet options for RVers and cruisers. We have a dedicated YouTube channel for that content at <http://www.youtube.com/mobileinternet...> you can subscribe to.

UPDATE! $35 monthly as of May 2019. Internet hotspot and TV service we use on the road in our RV, full time on a budget. We also used this same type of service when we lived in a regular sticks and bricks home. We recommend finding AT&T's unlimited hotspot on Ebay through a seller w/ a 98% rating or higher. A couple we found are listed below:

We are not affiliated with these sellers and there are many, many more, you just need to search on Ebay for a $29.99 monthly plan w/ AT&T unlimited data. Some are $50 and $60 for the same service, so buyer BEWARE!!!!

Having the internet with the best signal and the fastest speeds in your RV is a wonderful thing to have especially for full-time RVers. It's best to come up with a strategy for continued quality service. We have found a wealth of information on the Mobile Internet Resource Center webpage. <https://www.rvmobileinternet.com/> If you are looking for their breakdown of plans and which ones are good options you can see that here <http://bit.ly/2mmGhiZ>. Having a good Booster can at times mean the difference between no service and being able to make calls and get online.

When we first hit the road we found it difficult to stay connected to internet while boondocking in the national forests or on BLM lands. But as full time RVers whose livelihood requires cell signal for internet access, necessity forced us to learn how to stay connected.

In this video we explain what devices we use to stay connected to the internet on the road, how we determine if a campsite has cell signal before even arriving at it, and we explain what a webboost signal booster is and how it can help you maintain a fast cellular connection even in remote areas where signal is weak.

I've had a lot of questions about how I get internet in the motorhome for full time living and how others can get internet for their own van life needs. In particular I will be asked to explain how mobile dongles work in simple terms.

In this video I go through the three main ways I know how to get internet on the road including their pros and cons and I then go into detail on the way I use and like the best.

I use a 4g mobile dongle with unlimited three mobile internet for all my needs on the road.

How do you get internet for van life? Drop a comment below sharing your own hints and tips ☺☺

Please feel free to drop a comment below with any questions you have, I'm always happy to help where I can ☺ oh and give the video a like and share if you enjoyed it, I'd really appreciate it.

How do we work full time from the road?? That's what we get asked any time we say we work and travel full time. We hope this video about our mobile internet setup answers those questions.

NOTE: This is how WE do mobile internet. It's not necessarily right for everyone. There are countless methods and equipment out there.

Mobile full time internet is NOT for the techno-phobic. It takes some level of basic networking knowledge and a bit of study to understand the various tools available. To that end, we VERY HIGHLY recommend MIRC ( <https://www.rvmobileinternet.com> )! And, DO pay for the premium

Most RVers need to be connected on the road to the Internet, some of us more than others. For those digital nomads who depend on the Internet to work from the road like Jennifer and me, having a redundant, backup way of going online is a must.

Here's the ultimate system we have just installed in our new Leisure Travel Vans 2019 Unity FX. The Winegard Connect 2.0 is available on Amazon at <https://amzn.to/2Kd5KVP> and works on all RVs.

The SolidRF RV Pro we tested is a prototype but will be available for sale on Amazon beginning June 15, 2019 at <https://amzn.to/2YUJfJt>
The FuZelt liquid nails we used as an adhesive for the RV Pro mounting plate is available in at most home improvement stores or on Amazon at <https://amzn.to/2Mf8ip6>

The guilty companies (Boycott Israel card [back])

Why are these companies on the boycott list?

Summary of how each company on the boycott list is supporting Israel:

PLASTICS

Keter

Keter Group is one of the world's leading manufacturers and marketers of plastic consumer products. The Israeli plastics giant is owned by the Sagol family, and has a turnover of $1.1 billion, 90% of which is derived from overseas sales.

Keter's product range includes garden furniture, outdoor storage solutions and sheds, shelving systems and utility cabinets, tool boxes and products for the DIY market, household products, baby and toddler products.

Keter's brands, subsidiaries, and sister companies (all owned by the Sagol family) include 'OutStanding Solutions' (Keter garden storage products and accessories), Allibert (bathroom accessories), Curver (plastic home & food storage), Jardin (garden furniture), and Contico (plastic storage boxes). Keter products are also sold under the Black & Decker, B&Q and Homebase brands.

Even though the profits end up in Israel, not all the products are produced in Israel, for example Allibert has factories in France & Belgium. Curver has factories in Poland & Hungary. Keter has 12 factories in Israel, 2 of which are in the illegal settlements.

Stanley toolboxes are also made in Israel by Israeli plastics company ZAG (90% owned by Stanley).

For more information see the Shopping Can Kill campaign.

FOOD & DRINK

Strauss

Strauss Group is Israel's second largest food company with a turnover $1.8 billion in 2010 and 13,500 employees operating twenty-two production sites in twenty-one countries around the world. Its brands in the USA include Sabra (hummus dips) and Max Brenner (chocolate). Strauss Coffee is currently the fifth-largest coffee company in the world, dominating the central and eastern European markets as well as Brazil.

Strauss Group on its website, on the page on "Corporate Responsibility - Community Involvement" reveal their deep rooted support for the Israeli army, and in particular the infamous Golani platoon, known for its brutality, which the Strauss group has "adopted" for over 30 years.

Danone

In 1998 Danone opened its R&D facility in Israel - the Danone Institute, and later the same year in October 1998 Mr. Franck Riester, on behalf of Danone received the Jubilee Award by the Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu. [\[Jubilee Award\]](#)

Danone owns a 20% share of Israel's second largest food company, the Strauss Group. Danone Israel is the hub supplying Danone products to the whole Middle-East including Turkey, Greece, Egypt and Jordan.

Tivall

Food company Tivall is one of the world's leading suppliers of meat-substitute products. It has a turnover of $74 million and 1,000 employees[59] It has a manufacturing base at Kibbutz Lochamei Hageitot in Northern Israel, and a new facility in the Czech Republic.

Tivall products can mainly be found in health food stores - their website mentions Holland & Barrett, Fresh & Wild, and Planet Organic. A lot of their sales are through the supermarkets who rebrand Tivall products as part of their own frozen "Meat-free" range. This includes Asda, Morrisons and Sainsbury's. Morrisons also stocks Tivall brand Frankfurter. Waitrose online site Ocado sells a full range of Tivall products.

Osem

Osem is Israel's 4th largest food & beverages company (by turnover) after Tnuva, Strauss and Coca-Cola. It has a turnover of $712 million and employs nearly 5000 employees with 14 factories in Israel.

Osem products include Beit Hashitah (pickles), Of Tov (frozen meat products), Habait (ready made cakes) and Sabra Salads (ready-made spreads). Osem also owns 58% of meat-substitute manufacturer Tivall Foods.

According to Osem's website its products are sold in Marks & Spencer, Tesco, Sainsbury and Morrison, with each store marketing the products under their own label. Waitrose online site Ocado sells a range of Osem products from soups, crackers and croutons. Tesco online sells a range of Osem cakes.

In 2009, Osem UK announced its acquisition of Yarden GB. Yarden GB's product range includes chilled meats and Yarden wine. Yarden Heights Winery, located in Katzrin on the occupied Syrian Golan Heights. Golan Heights Winery exports 38% of all Israeli wine. Other products also include Gamla and Golan. According to Yarden GB's website its products are available in Tesco, Asda, Sainsbury, Morrisons, Budgens, Somerfield, Waitrose and Harrods. Waitrose online site Ocado sells a range of Yarden meat and houmous products.

Nestlé

s the world's largest food company, it owns 53.8% share of leading Israeli food manufacturer Osem, an investment worth over 1 billion million.

Mr. Peter Brabeck-Letmathe on behalf of Nestle, received the Jubilee Award by the Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu [\[Jubilee Award\]](#). In June 2002 Nestle opened its Research & Development Centre in Israel, in Sderot. And since then it has steadily increased its investment in Israel, its initial 10% stake in Osem has now grown to a controlling 53.8%. Nestle also owns Nespresso Israel Ltd in Israel, which supplies coffee brewing equipment. In 2010 Nestle acquired a 51% stake in Israeli babyfood company Materna Laboratories, an investment worth 1 billion million.

Nestlé has 9 factories in Israel, which after China(18) and Russia(11) is the highest number in any country in Asia - disproportionately high considering its size and population. And in May 2011, Nestle announced plans to build another factory in Israel, an ice cream plant worth 1 billion million.

Nestlé also owns 30% stake in L'Oréal, another company on the boycott list.

Coca Cola

A detailed account of Coca-Cola's links to Israel is provided here:

<http://www.inminds.com/boycott-coca-cola.html>

A summary:

Since 1966 Coca-Cola has been a staunch supporter of Israel. In 1997 the Government of Israel Economic Mission honored Coca-Cola with the Israel Independence Award Dinner for its continued support of Israel for the last 30 years and for refusing to abide by the Arab League boycott of Israel.

For Coca Cola bankrolls the American-Israel Chamber of Commerce Awards which honors companies that have contributed to the Israeli economy. In 2009 a Coca-Cola sponsored award went to Israel's Lobby AIPAC for its successful lobbying of the Senate to reject a call for "immediate ceasefire" and endorse the continuation of the Israel military assault on Gaza.

Coca-Cola tasked the Israeli venture capital Challenge Fund to locate suitable investments in Israel with a promise of "a blank check". This agreement is exceptional in the Israeli venture capital industry.

Coca-Cola hosted a special reception at the Coca-Cola world headquarters to honour Brigadier-General Ben-Eliezer. Ben-Eliezer, a war criminal, during the Six-Day War his unit was responsible for the execution of over 300 Egyptian POWs. Under Sharon, Ben-Eliezer served as Defence Minister presiding over the massacre at Jenin.

For two decades, nearly every year, Coca-Cola has sponsored the JCC Maccabi Games whose stated aim is to cultivate Jewish children's identification with the state of Israel. As part of this, Coca Cola has sponsored young children to visit military bases and spend time with war criminals in order to engender empathy, in their own words "visit an air force base.. talk with soldiers that are the elite Israel Defense Force units..meet fighters of the army".

In Israel, Israel's third largest food & beverages company, owns dairy farms in the illegal Israeli settlements of Shadmot Meuchad in the Jordan Valley and a plant in the industrial zone of Katzerin in the occupied Golan Heights.

Eden Springs

Eden Springs is an Israeli water cooler company that in Israel steals water from the Salukia spring in the the illegally occupied Syria. This is in violation of UN resolution 242 and Article 55 of the Hague Regulations which specify that you cannot acquire territory by force. You cannot plunder the natural resources of occupied territory. To clarify, the water in Eden Springs Coolers found in the UK is sourced locally, but the profits go back to Israel to finance its illegal activities.

SodaStream

SodaStream is an Israeli company manufacturing and distributing home carbonating devices and flavorings for soft drinks. The company is located in the industrial zone of Mishor Edomim which is an illegal Israeli settlement in the West Bank. Kav LaOved, the NGO fighting the rights of disadvantaged workers in Israeli companies, has reported that SodaStream factory workers, in particular Palestinian workers, receive less than half the minimum wage and has described the working conditions in the factory as "one of the worst", with workers afraid to complain if they complain of the conditions.

cream brands include: SodaStream, Soda-Club, AlcoJet, Sprudelino, Aquabar, Gazoz, Aquafizz, Aquabubbler, Penguin, Soda n Jet and Edition1. Its products are available in Argos, Asda, Comets, Currys, Harvey Nichols, Homebase, John Lewis, Robe Selfridges and House of Fraser.

Starbucks

Shultz, the founder, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Starbucks who also owns 31.6 million shares of Starbucks (worth around $1.4 billion in Nov 2011) is an active Zionist.

In 2003 he was honoured by the Jerusalem Fund of Aish HaTorah with "The Israel 50th Anniversary Friend of Zion Tribute Award" for his role in "playing a key role in promoting close alliance between the United States and Israel". The ultra-right Jerusalem Fund of Aish HaTorah funds Israeli arms fairs chaired by the butcher of Jenin, General Shaul Mofaz, and the Zionist media outlet HonestReporting.com, they were also implicated in the production and distribution of the infamous Islamophobic film 'Obese Muslims Proudly Displayed the Award on the Company's Website' under the section of 'awards and accolades' the Starbucks company website. However, once the boycott started to bite the award mysteriously disappeared from its website.

Howard Shultz's work as a propagandist for Israel has been praised by the Israeli Foreign Ministry as being key to Israel's long-term PR success. In 2002, whilst the Israeli army was slaughtering Palestinians in Jenin, Howard Shultz made a provocative speech blaming the Palestinian Intifada as a manifestation of anti-Semitism, and asked people to unite behind Israel. Starbucks also sponsors fund-raising events for Israel.

When other businesses were desperately pulling out of Israel, Starbucks decided to help Israel's floundering economy and opened Starbucks in Israel. The venture failed but Shultz has vowed Starbucks will "return to Israel in due course".

Starbucks has opened outlets in US bases in Afghanistan and Iraq, and at the illegal torture centre in Guantanamo Bay. Customer Relationship Manager Howard Shultz has the deepest respect and admiration for U.S. military.. who risk their lives to protect Americans and our values of freedom and democracy". Petty Officer Barry Tate who is serving in Guantanamo Bay agrees that Starbucks is helping "lift the morale" of the Guantanamo interrogators at Guantanamo Bay.

McDonald's

McDonald's Corporation is a major corporate partner of the Jewish United Fund and Jewish Federation. According to the Jewish United Fund's Israel Commission it "works to maintain American military, economic and diplomatic support for Israel; monitors and, where necessary, responds to media coverage of Israel". The Jewish United Fund also runs "Fun-filled Summer Family Missions to Israel" where children get to "visit an army base and meet with Israeli soldiers" and "visit our sister city, Kiryat Gat and see the important work we do there". Kiryat Gat is built on stolen Palestinian land - the lands of the villages of Iraq Al Manshiya and Al-Faluja whose residents were expelled in 1949 in contravention of International Law. Through its "Partnership to Israel" programme, the Jewish United Fund provides financial support annually to help further settlement and development of Kiryat Gat. The Jewish Federation, through its Israel Action Network is also involved in fight "efforts to boycott Israeli products" and "campaigns, such as equating Israel with apartheid South Africa".

One way McDonald's supports the Jewish United Fund is by running a partnership scheme whereby they will match any donation made by an employee to the Jewish United Fund with its own equal size donation.

McDonald's first restaurant in the Middle East was in Israel, opened in 1993, since then it has 160 restaurants in Israel (1996) with a total of 600 employees, employing around 4000 Israelis. Since April 2009 McDonald's has also opened 15 branches of McCafe chain in Israel, with plans to open 10 new branches every year.

McDonald's discriminates against its Arab workers, in 2004 it sacked an Arab worker in Israel because she was caught speaking Arabic. Arabic, along with Hebrew, is the official language of Israel spoken by 20% of the population.

According to the American Jewish Committee (AJC), whose Executive Director "regularly meets with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu", McDonald's in July 2001 immediately pulled an advertising campaign in Egypt when the ADC contacted them to complain that a performer featured in the advert had in the past performed a song critical of Israel. Within 24 hours of the complaint, the advert was cancelled and according to the Egyptian franchise of McDonald's "all copies of the tapes were whisked 'back to the main offices'".

Notes:

I'm sorry, but at this time we can only deliver Boycott Israeli Dates leaflets in the UK. For the Boycott Israel Cards we have ventured in to Europe and even North America but we have no distribution channels set up so its intermittent at best.

We have A4 poster size Boycott Israel cards to put up on Mosque notice boards, etc. and A4 Boycott Israeli Dates posters for shops and Mosques. Please ask for these if required. (use the Additional Notes box on form for this) Material is free of charge, just let us know how many you require. Due to postage costs its not economical to send very small quantities. If you require less than 50 cards then please try and partner with someone so that together you may be able to distribute 50. Remember the cards don't have to be given out in one go, they can be distributed all year round - just keep a few with you to use when needed - for example next time you see Coke for sale in your favourite Muslim restaurant or next time you see a sister in hijab entering M&S or brothers sitting in Starbucks..

Our cards have proven extremely popular and we do regular print runs of 100,000 at a time to keep up with demand so we should have plenty of stock, if you require cards please do let us know.

"For most journalists, whether they realize it or not, are groomed to be tribunes of an ideology that regards itself as non-ideological, that presents itself as the natural center, the very fulcrum of modern life. ## Cultural Boycott

Israel overtly uses culture as a form of propaganda to whitewash or justify its regime of occupation, settler-colonialism and apartheid over the Palestinian people.

Just as South African anti-apartheid activists had called on international artists, writers and cultural institutions to culturally boycott South Africa, so in April 2004 Palestinian civil society called for a cultural boycott of Israel. The Palestinian Campaign for the Academic and Cultural Boycott of Israel urges international cultural workers and cultural organizations, including unions and associations, to boycott and/or work towards the cancellation of events, activities, agreements, or projects involving Israel, its lobby groups or its cultural institutions. International venues and festivals are asked to reject funding and any form of sponsorship from the Israeli government.

Know what to boycott

Targeted consumer boycotts are convincing retailers across the world to stop selling products from companies profiting from Israel's crimes. Many Israeli exporters complain that it is getting harder for them to export their products.

The Palestinian BDS National Committee (BNC) calls for a boycott of all Israeli products but we also target our boycotts to focus on a small number of companies and products for maximum impact. We focus on companies that play a clear and direct role in Israel's crimes and where we think we can have an impact.

Check with BDS organisations in your country for the brands being targeted in your community.

Not targeted consumer boycott

A targeted consumer boycott focuses on a small number of companies

The BNC is currently encouraging consumer boycotts of the following products and brands:

Israeli Fruit and Vegetables

Fruit and vegetables are one of Israel's biggest exports and all Israeli agricultural exporters are complicit in Israel's violations of international law as they operate on stolen Palestinian land.

Caterpillar

Caterpillar bulldozers are regularly used in the demolition of Palestinian homes and farms and in Israel's massacres in Gaza.

SodaStream

SodaStream home drinks machines are one of Israel's best known exports.

Ahava

Ahava cosmetics are another of Israel's best known export companies.

HP

FAQs About Boycott

Below are some short answers to some of the most basic questions we're asked about the academic boycott. For a more general FAQ about BDS, see here. If you have any questions about how to apply the guidelines for the academic and cultural boycotts or whether a particular event or initiative is boycottable, please contact pacbi@bdsmovement.net.

Besides boycotting Israeli goods, what else can I do?

The BDS movement is about much more than consumer boycotts: it is also about campaigning alongside others to pressure institutions, unions, and companies to boycott or divest and to isolate Israel academically, culturally, economically and militarily. Check out the other areas of this Get Involved page for more information and ideas.

What about those boycott lists with tens of products?

The global nature of today's economy means that there are thousands of companies that have links to Israel and are complicit to various degrees in Israel's violations of international law. However, for our movement to have real impact we need our consumer boycotts to be easy to explain, have wide appeal and the potential for success. That's why globally, while we call for divestment from all companies implicated in Israel's human rights violations, we focus our boycott campaigns on a select few strategic targets. We also encourage the principle of context sensitivity, whereby activists in any given context decide what best to target and how, in line with BDS guidelines. There is a lot of information online claiming that some large companies give money to Israel, some of which turns out to be false. BDS has built a reputation for strictly adhering to established facts and producing the most accurate information.

Do the barcodes on Israeli products start with 729?

A barcode starting with 729 usually indicates a product of Israel. But this is not always reliable. The best way to tell if a product is made in Israel is to look for a “Product of Israel” label or to ask the retailer if they can guarantee a product isn't from Israel.

Does the BDS movement call for a boycott of all Israeli products or just products and companies from illegal Israeli settlements?

The BDS movement calls for a boycott of all the products of all Israeli -- and international -- companies that are involved in Israel's violations of Palestinian rights. Virtually all Israeli companies are complicit to some degree in Israel's system of occupation and apartheid. Some of our biggest economic boycott and divestment campaigns are against companies that operate in illegal Israeli settlements in the Occupied West Bank, including East Jerusalem. This is simply because campaigns targeting these companies are, at this stage, more capable of winning widespread support and succeeding. But other large campaigns, especially in the academic and cultural sphere, have gone well beyond settlements to address other serious Israeli human rights violations.

representing farmers struggling for their right to their land and to food sovereignty, urge international civil society organisations to build effective campaigns and work towards ending agricultural trade with Israel that finances and rewards the destruction of Palestinian farming,“ the call begins. The call to action is reproduced in full at the end of this briefing.

Action to end international complicity with the destruction of Palestinian agriculture can be a vital contribution towards the Palestinian struggle for freedom, justice and equality and to the Palestinian right to food sovereignty and access to land. Farming Injustice | Introduction

This briefing aims to shed light on the systematic destruction of Palestinian agriculture by Israel and the complicity of Israeli agricultural companies in this destruction.

Palestinian farmers face the brunt of Israel’s land confiscations, demolitions and water theft. Farmers that still have access to land and water face systematically implemented restrictions and violence. The siege of Gaza prevents farmers from accessing basic equipment and has made exports of fresh produce almost impossible. Farmers and fishermen regularly come under attack from the Israeli military. Many of these actions constitute violations of international law.

An estimated 10% of the Palestinian GDP ($480 million) and 110,000 jobs are lost annually because of the negative effect of Israeli policies on Palestinian agriculture in the occupied Palestinian territory. 1

Israeli agricultural export companies such as Mehadrin and Hadiklaim are among the primary beneficiaries of the destruction of Palestinian agriculture. These companies operate inside and export produce from illegal settlements using stolen Palestinian land and water and profit from the siege on Gaza.

International trade with Israeli agricultural export companies finances the expansion of illegal settlements and rewards them for their participation in violations of international law.

A number of governments and retailers have already taken action in response to civil society pressure, but much more needs to be done to end trade with Israeli agricultural companies complicit in Israel’s violations of international law.

Food sovereignty

Palestinian farming organisations increasingly see their struggle to remain on their land and resist Israel’s colonisation and restrictions on Palestinian agriculture as part of a wider global struggle for food sovereignty.

Decisions about how the food system works, what gets produced and how it is traded are made by large agricultural businesses, retailers and governments of powerful states. This is the primary reason that in 2009, for the first time in human history, more than a billion people were classified as living in hunger.

As the global food system has been reshaped in the interests of private profit, millions of small-scale farmers and indigenous people have been forced from their lands or had their way of life turned upside down.

Food sovereignty provides an alternative and has been defined by international peasants movement Via Campesina as follows:

Food sovereignty is the right of peoples to define their own food and agriculture; to protect and regulate domestic agricultural production and trade in order to achieve sustainable development objectives; to determine the extent to which they want to be self reliant; to restrict the dumping of products in their markets; and to provide local fisheries based communities the priority in managing the use of and the rights to aquatic resources. Food sovereignty does not negate trade, but rather, it promotes the formulation of trade policies and practices that serve the rights of peoples to safe, healthy and ecologically sustainable production.

5Around 1.8 million
Palestinians – two thirds of who are refugees –
live in a strip of land that is just 40km long and 9km wide, making Gaza one of the most densely populated areas in the world.

Gaza is blockaded by the Israeli military and cut off from the outside world through physical barriers and a stringent regime of restrictions on movement of both people and goods. Even British prime minister David Cameron has called the occupied and besieged Gaza Strip a “prison camp.” 2

A UN report has warned that Gaza will not be “liveable” by 2020 barring urgent action. 3

In 2008-09, Israel launched a 23-day assault on Gaza that killed more than 1,400 Palestinians.

The United Nations and leading human rights organisations accused Israel of deliberately targeting civilians, using banned weapons and committing war crimes and crimes against humanity. Restrictions on the movement of essential goods have severely hampered the ability of Palestinians in Gaza to rebuild damaged infrastructure. Israel launched another major attack on Gaza in November 2012 in which more than 150 Palestinians were killed. 4

Israel’s repeated military offensives against Gaza and its years-old siege have led to a dramatic fall in the number of Palestinians employed in the agricultural sector there, reduced production and incomes for Palestinian farmers and left 80% of

1. Agriculture in Gaza Farming Injustice | Agriculture in Gaza
Israel's siege

Israel's siege on Gaza has almost completely destroyed Palestinian agriculture. Israel has routinely prevented essential items such as components for irrigation systems and fishing nets from being imported into Gaza. Farmers in Gaza are on the whole prevented from exporting fresh produce.

Only 148 truckloads of human food related exports were allowed out of Gaza in the whole of 2012. 6

The volume of exports from Gaza is still less than 2% of the pre-2007 levels. 7 Each year, tons of strawberries and other fresh produce are left to rot while waiting in vain at the Israeli border.

The destruction of Palestinian livelihoods and the denial of supply of essential goods to Gaza's farmers are tools consciously used by Israeli policy makers. A senior Israeli official described Israel's policy in Gaza saying "the idea" is to "put the Palestinians on a diet, but not to make them die of hunger." The Israeli government calculated the minimum number of calories needed by Gaza's 1.5 million inhabitants to avoid malnutrition and these figures were then used to determine the quantity of food that was allowed in each day. 8

Israel's regular attacks on Gaza cause huge damage to Palestinian farmland, crops and agricultural buildings. Following Israel's 2008-09 attack on Gaza, a total of 46% of agricultural land in the Gaza Strip was estimated to be inaccessible or out of production. 9 Residue from phosphorous and artillery shells seriously impact the quality of the food that farmers are able to produce and have impacts on health. 10 Following the November 2012 attack, the Ministry of Agriculture in Gaza estimated that the agricultural sector incurred losses totalling US$21 million. 11

'Buffer zones'

The Israeli military has imposed a 'buffer zone' that serves as a no-go area that extends along the entire northern and eastern perimeter of the Gaza Strip, inside Palestinian territory. Palestinians that enter these areas routinely come under fire, including from remotely controlled weapon systems (see map p.26).

In 2011, the Israeli military killed 24 Palestinians, including 5 children, and injured 205 people in the border buffer zones. 12 Defence for Children International reports that the Israeli military shot 30 children collecting gravel in the border areas between March 2010 and December 2011. 13

Main photo: Farm workers collect the harvest near the border fence, where they risk coming under fire from Israeli troops.

Right: A Palestinian man during a weekly march to the buffer zone near Beit Hanoun. Farmers have been forced to abandon their land near the border due to regular Israeli gunfire and much of the area has become a wasteland.

Anne Paq/Activestills

7Attacks on farmers

in the Buffer Zones

Palestinian farmers and farm labourers come under regular attack from the Israeli military and these attacks have continued even in spite of the November 2012 ceasefire agreement.

One morning in late January 2013, a small group of farm labourers were tending olive and lemon trees near the buffer zone. Farm labourers report seeing two Israeli military jeeps stop at the border fence, so they left their work fearing that the soldiers may open fire.

A farmer surveys the damage after Israeli bulldozers level his farm. Regular

Israeli incursions destroy farm buildings and crops and kill livestock.

Initially relieved when the jeeps drove away, the labourers soon noticed that the jeeps had left two soldiers behind that were wearing foliage as camouflage. The soldiers opened fire and shot 21-year-old Mamdouh Al-Kafarna in his legs. As he fell, Mamdouh saw the soldiers cross to the Palestinian side of the fence and enter the Gaza Strip a short distance. At the sight of them running towards him, Mamdouh was afraid they might abduct or even kill him and tried desperately to scramble away.

Amazingly, Mamdouh managed to get to safety and was eventually transferred to Beit Hanoun

Hospital. Mamdouh is the eldest son in his family and only he and his father have work, supporting 20 people at home. Many others are not so lucky. 21

The precise areas designated by Israel as part of the buffer zone are unknown, causing great uncertainty. Letters dropped during the 2008-09 attack on Gaza stated it was 300m from the border but in effect the zone extends up to 2km from the border of the Gaza Strip, which is as narrow as 5km in places.

farmers to grow basic and less profitable crops such as barley or wheat. 15 A UN OCHA report has estimated that lost agricultural output in the buffer zones totals 75,000 tons per year, representing lost income of more than US$50 million. 16

Between 30% and 40% of Gaza's farmland is located in the buffer zones. 14 Most of the farmland within 300m of the border has been completely abandoned. The area was previously used to grow fruit, olive and nut trees and a variety of vegetables. Israel carries out methodical demolitions of Palestinian farms in the buffer zone. Military convoys of trucks, troops and bulldozers enter Gaza, level Palestinian farms and uproot fruit trees as part of frequent incursions, often supported by military helicopters or drones. More than 2,000 buildings were destroyed between 2005 and 2010. 17

Many Palestinian farmers continue to tend to farmland in parts of the buffer zones despite the huge risk of death or serious injury. The Israeli military has demolished more than 150 water wells in the restricted areas since 2005 and routinely destroy any crop taller than 80cm, forcing many As part of the November 2012 ceasefire agreement, Israel agreed to lift the land buffer zone. However, four Palestinians were killed and 75 Palestinians, including 14 children, were wounded by Israeli gunfire in the buffer zones in the two months following the ceasefire. 18

Farming Injustice | Agriculture in Gaza

Fishing
Israel has also implemented a naval buffer zone. Despite the Oslo Accords stating that Palestinians have the right to fish up to 20 nautical miles off Gaza's coast, Israel imposed a three-mile limit in June 2007. 19 Because they are forced to fish in such shallow waters, Palestinian fishermen can only catch mainly small fish that have been contaminated by the output of inadequate sewage treatment facilities.

Even within this restricted area, fishermen face arrest and regular attacks from the Israeli navy including gunfire, shelling, and the ramming of boats. Between May 2009 and November 2010, Israel carried out 53 attacks on fishermen, resulting in two deaths, and arrested 42 fishermen. 20

The Israeli military often orders fishermen to strip to their undergarments, jump into the water and swim towards Israel gunboats, where they are handcuffed and blindfolded and sometimes beaten. Sabotage and the damage and confiscation of nets and boats by the Israeli navy are commonplace.

Many boats now sit idle due to damage and the high risks involved in fishing off Gaza's coast. Despite the sea being Gaza's best potential resource, its 4,000 fishermen are one of its poorest groups.

The November 2012 ceasefire agreement supposedly increased the fishing area to six nautical miles. However, the Israeli military has regularly arrested and attacked fishermen operating in this new 6-mile area.

him. 22

after and continues to the 200 illegal settlements in the West Bank, including East Jerusalem. 23

All Israeli settlements in the occupied Palestinian territories are illegal under international law and their construction amounts to a war crime.

Convention. 24 It is a grave breach of Additional Protocol I. 25 Under the Statute of the International Criminal Court, “the transfer, directly or indirectly, by the Occupying Power of parts of its own civilian population into the territory it occupies” constitutes a war crime in international armed conflicts.” 26 Under Israeli law, Israeli settlers live under Israeli civilian rule, while the 2.7 million Palestinians living in the West Bank are subject to repressive military law. Nearly half of the land in the West Bank is now off-limits to Palestinians.

The majority of agricultural land in occupied Palestinian territory is in the West Bank. Palestinian farmers face the brunt of Israel’s land confiscations, demolitions and theft of water. Farmers that still have access to land and water face systematically implemented restrictions and violence.

10Farming Injustice | Agriculture in the West Bank Dispossession and displacement

Israeli policies in the West Bank aim to concentrate the Palestinian population into isolated Bantustans and facilitate the continued expansion of illegal settlements. Palestinian farmers are forcibly displaced from their land in order to make way for illegal settlements.

Israel is constructing an apartheid wall surrounding the West Bank that is designed to entrench the annexation of East Jerusalem, further isolate the West Bank and facilitate the confiscation of Palestinian land. More than 85% of Israel’s wall is illegally built on occupied Palestinian land, and its construction has resulted in further land confiscation and left many Palestinians trapped between the wall and the Israel-West Bank border or unable to access their land. 27

Nearly 63% of agricultural land in the West Bank is located in Area C, a formal military zone controlled solely by Israel in which Israel prevents Palestinian construction and carries out the majority of its demolitions and land confiscations. In 2012, Israel destroyed 599 structures in Area C, including houses and farming structures, and more than 4,000 Palestinians were affected by demolitions. 28 As the area of land available for farming shrinks, Palestinians that would have otherwise worked in agriculture are forced to move to urban areas to look for work, which over time reduces the size of farming communities and the number of Palestinians with farming knowledge and experience.

Olive trees play an especially important role in the Palestinian economy and Palestinian identity in general. Israel is only too aware of this; the Israeli military and fanatic settlers have between them uprooted, burnt and destroyed nearly 1.5 million olive trees since 2001. 29

Movement restrictions

Farmers are often separated from their lands by Israel's apartheid wall or other barriers and are only granted access by the occupation authorities to their land infrequently or sometimes not at all. Even where access is granted, farmers are often prevented from taking tractors, machinery and other tools onto their land. There are reports of Palestinian farmers being prevented from accessing their land to extinguish fires destroying their crops, including when Israeli settlers have set the fires deliberately. Checkpoints and entry restrictions prevent workers from accessing the farmland at which they work, prevent agricultural produce from reaching local markets, increase transport costs, and often cause produce to rot while stuck in transit.

The lack of adequate water supply puts farmers at the mercy of weather patterns, causing reduced yields and forcing farmers to grow far less valuable crops that can rely on rainwater alone. In other cases, Israeli over-extraction has changed the salinity of the water, making it unusable for irrigation. Violence

In addition, Israeli settlements, normally located on the top of hills above Palestinian communities, allow their sewage water and waste to flow into Palestinian areas, causing pollution of the underground water, health impacts and crop damage. 37 The number of settler attacks resulting in Palestinian casualties and property damage is currently rising sharply and increased by 32% in 2011 compared to 2010, and by over 144% compared to 2009. 38 Settlers also burn crops and destroy olive trees, with more than 10,000 olive trees destroyed or damaged by settlers in 2011 alone. 39 Settlers rarely face criminal charges for attacks on Palestinians. These crimes are committed with near total impunity and with protection from the occupation forces. 40

Hableh is a small town of 7,000 inhabitants in the Qalqilia district in the north of the West Bank that is almost completely surrounded by Israel's wall.

Ibrahim, 62, owns 26 dunums of land (1 dunum = 1,000 square meters) planted with orange and lemon trees and used to own four greenhouses. Ibrahim is now separated from his land by Israel's apartheid wall and his greenhouses have been completely destroyed.

"My sons used to help me farm the land and operate the Artesian well but now they can't get permits to pass through the wall," Ibrahim explains.

"Despite all the difficulties I go almost every day to my land. The gate opens between 7am and 8am and opens again for one hour at 4pm. Many of my trees died because I can't take care of them alone. Israel also destroyed our well, so now I am forced to buy water from the Israeli national water company Mekorot, which increases the cost of farming the land.”

“They want to push us to surrender and leave our land for settlers, but we understand what they are trying to do and we will never leave our land,” he said.

Israeli companies export fruits and vegetables including dates, citrus fruits, avocados, potatoes, tomatoes, cucumbers, potatoes and fresh herbs to markets all over the world including Europe, Asia and South Africa. In Europe, many major supermarkets have supply contracts with complicit Israeli companies or their wholly owned European subsidiaries. In 2010, Israel exported fruit and vegetables worth US$2.1 billion, 66% of which was to European markets. 46

This trade finances the continued existence and expansion of illegal Israeli settlements in the occupied Palestinian territory and the colonisation of Palestinian land and resources. It also rewards Israeli agricultural export companies for their role in Israeli violations of international law. Farming Injustice | International trade with Israeli companies

Financing colonisation

Israeli agricultural companies operate farms and packing houses in illegal Israeli settlements in the occupied West Bank, especially in the fertile Jordan Valley, and export settlement produce to international markets. Companies such as Hadiklaim, Mehadrin and Hashtil operate farms and administer the whole export process, while others such as EDOM and AdaFresh have packing houses in illegal settlements and manage the export of produce grown in illegal settlements. Israeli agriculture companies operating in settlements benefit from access to government subsidies and to cheap land, water and Palestinian labour.

By operating in illegal Israeli settlements, Israeli companies help to secure Israel’s grip on occupied territory. Water-intensive production in illegal settlements makes use of stolen Palestinian water in its intensive production processes; one company, Mehadrin, even has a formal arrangement with the Israeli state water company Mekorot and directly participates in the appropriation of Palestinian water. 47 In the Jordan Valley, Israel has granted almost exclusive use of water to settlements. Estimates of the proportion of total Israeli exports that are from Israeli settlements vary from 2% to 33%, with the higher figures including goods partially Businesses should support and respect the protection of internationally proclaimed human rights and ensure that they are not complicit in human rights abuses. [They] should not breach international humanitarian law provisions. Nor should they be complicit in any breaches. If they do, they may be subject to criminal or civil liability.

And this liability can be extended to individual employees of such businesses.

Richard Falk, UN Special Rapporteur 45 produced in settlements. 48 Estimates towards the higher end of the range seem reasonable when it is considered that 8.4% of the Israeli population resides in illegal settlements and that government investment in settlement businesses is consistently higher than in Israel and can as high as 22% of the total budget for business investment. 49

Figures based on the available data show that produce grown in illegal settlements constitutes a large proportion of total agricultural exports and provide substantial revenue to illegal settlements:

- About 70% of the grapes produced by Israeli settlements in the occupied Jordan Valley are exported, making up approximately half of all the grapes exported by Israel. 50

- 40% of the dates grown in Israel in 2011 were exported, generating a profit of US$265 million for Israeli export companies. Jordan Valley settlements grow 40% of the exported dates. 51

- Herbs for export are primarily grown in the occupied Jordan Valley. 80% of Israel's herbs are exported to Europe, mainly France, Switzerland, the Netherlands, Sweden and Scandinavia. 52

International trade with companies operating in settlements dramatically improves the economic viability of settlements, consolidating the settlements and providing a substantial revenue stream to private settlers and settlement municipal authorities.

Main photo: Greenhouses and other buildings in a fenced off illegal settlement called Ro'i in the Jordan Valley, built on stolen Palestinian land close to Palestinian Bedouin communities such as Al Hadidya and Ras-Al Ahmar.

15 According to settlement authorities in the Jordan Valley, "about 30 per cent of the [Israeli settlements] are economically based directly on agriculture and an additional 30 per cent give agriculture related services – packing houses, refrigeration, transport, office services, etc." Jordan Valley settlements produce an estimated 500m NIS (US$128m) of fresh produce each year. 53 Many Jordan Valley settlements rely on agricultural production, and the existence of many settlements would be under threat if they were no longer to export their produce. 54

It is well understood that an international market for settlement produce exists and produce from settlements can reach international markets in ten hours. 55 This creates a powerful incentive for settlement expansion and the establishment of new settlements.

Any trade with companies operating in or involved in illegal Israeli settlements supports the continued existence of settlements. Trade with such companies provides them with capital that can be used to invest in the expansion of their operations in settlements.

The continued existence of trade with companies operating in illegal settlements provides settlements with de facto recognition and political legitimacy. Israel has decimated agricultural production in Gaza.

Many of the main Israeli agriculture companies are able to dump produce deemed unsuitable for international export into the Gazan market, further undermining local Palestinian production. Israeli agricultural export companies also benefit from the loss in direct competition caused by the destruction of agricultural production in Gaza. International trade with Israeli agricultural export companies continues despite the way in which these companies benefit from and are complicit with Israel's siege on Gaza.

Exploiting Palestinian farmers

Israeli agricultural companies exploit their relationship with the Israeli state and the destruction of Palestinian agriculture. Palestinian producers are sometimes left with no option but to export through Israeli export companies, who sometimes label Palestinian produce as 'Made in Israel'. Palestinian farmers have consistently rejected the suggestion that this exploitation should serve as a reason for inaction in the face of the illegal actions of Israeli agricultural companies. Israeli agricultural companies also undermine

Palestinian production by dumping produce into the Palestinian market at times of peak Palestinian production. 56

Exports of agricultural produce grown inside Israel using water illegally requisitioned from the occupied Palestinian territory also contributes to the colonisation of Palestinian land and the severe water shortages faced by Palestinian farmers.

Exploiting Palestinian labour

Loss of sources of income and high unemployment leaves many Palestinians with no option but to work for Israeli agricultural companies in illegal Israeli settlements, including in those established on land from which they and their families have been forcibly displaced.

Palestinian workers in illegal settlements earn, on average, less than half the minimum wage stipulated by Israeli law, and most do not receive benefits. Working environments are often highly dangerous, and accidents and injuries are commonplace since settlement employers do not respect safety standards when it comes to Palestinian workers. 71

As many as 1,000 Palestinian children are employed in Israeli settlements at any one time, working in similarly dangerous and exploitative conditions as their adult counterparts. 72

Children as young as 11 years old have been found working adult shifts in fruit picking fields in illegal settlements. 73

Mehadrin also collaborates with Mekorot, the Israeli state water company, to supply water to its farmers and thus participates in the appropriation of Palestinian water. Workers in Mehadrin packing houses have spoken of grossly exploitative working conditions.

Mehadrin took over a large number of Agrexco's clients when it collapsed in 2011.

Mehadrin's impact on Al-Hadidiye

Prior to 1967, more than 100 families inhabited the village of Al-Hadidiye, which is located near Tubas in the Jordan Valley. In 1970, Israel declared the area a closed military zone despite the absence of any noticeable military activity. The village has been demolished four times and only around 110 permanent inhabitants remain. A further 130 people still live in the village but stay in nearby villages during the cold winter months due a lack of shelter. In November 2011, Israel served the village with a new demolition order targeting 17 structures and the village is under constant threat of demolition. The village is also affected by severe restrictions on movement and construction.

The people in Al-Hadidiye are entirely dependent on rearing animals, as they do not have sufficient water to grow crops. Nearby water pipes managed by Israeli state water company Mekorot have been declared for the exclusive use of Israeli settlements, and the digging of wells has been prohibited, so water must be brought from a natural spring in the area. 69 The nearby agricultural settlements of Ro'i and Beqa'ot have been built on land belonging to the village of Al-Hadidiye. Using the water and land appropriated from Al-Hadidiye, these settlements grow agricultural produce that is exported by Mehadrin. 70

Trade in agricultural produce from Ro'i and Beqa'ot is only possible because of the displacement and dispossession of the Palestinians of Al-Hadidiye. International trade with companies operating in settlements encourages on-going efforts to demolish the remainder of the Al-Hadidiye and other Palestinian communities in the Jordan Valley similarly at risk of being removed from the map.

Agrexco was the main Israeli agricultural export company until it was formally liquidated in September 2011, partially as a result of a large boycott campaign against it in Europe. Now re-established and owned by the Bickel Group, Agrexco has regained contracts with a large number of its previous clients. 60

The Bickel Group has itself been documented to operate in illegal Israeli settlements. 61

In February 2013, Corporate Watch researchers were told by Palestinian workers in the settlement of Massua that Agrexco was exporting produce from the settlement and found an operational packing house with Agrexco signage in the settlement of Vered Yeriho. 62

The Hadiklaim Israel Date Growers Collective includes date growers the settlements in the occupied Jordan Valley and exports dates including Medjoul dates from illegal Israeli settlements including the Beit Ha'Arava and Tomer settlements in the Jordan Valley. 65 The company exports to 30 countries and has supplied dates to European retailers including Migros, Tesco and Sainsbury's. 66

Labelling

The international community does not recognise Israel's claim that settlements in the occupied Palestinian territory are part of Israel. Despite this, products from illegal settlements are often marked 'Made in Israel'.

In 2009, the UK government responded to public pressure by issuing guidance that retailers should label products from settlements with "produce of the West Bank (Israeli settlement produce)" and Palestinian produce as "produce of the West Bank (Palestinian produce)". 77 The guidance asserted that European Union legislation requires food to be labelled in an accurate fashion. Medjoul dates and other products have been found in UK supermarket Tesco labelled as settlement produce.

2012, the Danish and South African governments issued similar guidance. 78 European Union officials have told campaigners that the EU may issue

labelling guidance to all member states.

Swiss supermarket Migros has responded to a well-supported grassroots campaign by announcing that it would implement a labelling policy. 79 Labelling of settlement produce is a welcome step towards more restrictive measures and may lead to retailers adopting official policies of not selling settlement produce.

However, there have been numerous examples of Israeli agricultural export companies using fraudulent methods to mislead consumers, retailers and governments about the true origin of their produce. 80

In January 2013, Corporate Watch obtained labels for UK supermarket Morrisons own brand Medjoul dates from the illegal Israeli settlement of Tomer in the occupied Jordan Valley. In what appears to be a violation of the UK labelling guidance, the Morrisons packaging was marked 'Produce of Israel'. 81 The exporter was the Israeli date growers' cooperative Hadiklaim, which is known to grow dates in and export dates from illegal Israeli settlements and mislabel them (see p.19).

While Morrisons claims that the dates were grown inside Israel and then packaged in Tomer, the source of this information appears to be Hadiklaim's own records and there are no date growing regions inside Israel near Tomer. 82 This example underscores the serious problems in implementing labelling of settlement produce in the context of deception and deep involvement in settlements by Israeli export companies.

Most importantly, labelling should not become a means by which governments avoid meeting their legal and moral obligations to end trade that sustains illegal settlements and by which retailers deflect criticism for trading with Israeli companies that participate in violations of international law.

settlement produce

Supermarkets in a number of European countries including Norway, Sweden, the UK and elsewhere have responded to campaign pressure by implementing an official policy of not selling produce grown in illegal settlements.

Major organisations including trade union federations, churches, political parties and NGOs support boycotts of settlement products and campaign for governments to implement a ban on the import of settlement products. In October 2012, a report by a coalition of 22 major European NGOs included a recommendation for a ban on settlement imports.<sup>83</sup> The government of Ireland has pledged its support for a EU-wide ban on settlement products, and Norway's foreign minister has hinted at support for a settlement produce ban.<sup>84</sup> If the EU is not prepared to implement a ban on imports of settlement produce, individual member states could implement a unilateral ban. Legal analysis conducted by Al Haq concluded that states are in violation of their obligations under international law by failing to end trade with illegal Israeli settlements. Government regulation that bans the import or the sale of settlement produce would be a significant step that would begin to hold Israel and Israeli businesses accountable for their violations of international law.

Supermarket policies and any future government regulation to end the sale of settlement produce face the same traceability issues as labelling-based responses, although government regulation that involved tough sanctions could lead to major retailers dropping ties to companies exporting from settlements altogether.

Legal analysis

In January 2013, Palestinian human rights organisation Al Haq published a legal analysis regarding the international trade in agricultural produce from illegal Israeli settlements.<sup>90</sup>

The report explained that Israeli settlements in the occupied Palestinian territory are illegal under international law and amount to “serious breaches of peremptory norms of international law, including the right to self-determination, the prohibition against extensive destruction and appropriation of property and the prohibition against colonialism.”

Al Haq went on to explain that international law places responsibility on third states such as EU members. All states are under an obligation not to recognise the situation resulting from Israel's illegal conduct as lawful, not to render aid or assistance in maintaining the illegal situation and to actively cooperate in order to bring it to an end.

Al Haq argue that by allowing agricultural produce grown in illegal Israeli settlements, states “implicitly recognise as legal a situation arising from a breach of peremptory norms of international law and thus violate their duty of non- recognition” and that “in addition, by engaging in the trade of settlement produce, States are failing to comply with their obligation to actively cooperate in order to put the Israeli settlement enterprise to an end”.

A ban on the import of settlement produce would be lawful and would not contravene

EU or General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) law, the report states. Although not covered in the Al Haq report, it could also be argued that because states are obliged to take action that is effective, any ban on settlement trade should include any company involved in Israeli settlements, not just produce actually grown in settlements. 22 More than 1,000 people marched through Montpellier in 2009 in protest at Agrexco's plans to build a terminal in the nearby port of Sète.

The campaign against Agrexco spread to 13 countries and was a major factor behind its collapse in 2011.

Ending trade with complicit companies

Agricultural companies as a whole are accountable for their conduct, and any trade with companies that export from settlements or participate in other Israeli violations of international law only serves to encourage further Israeli violations of international law and is inherently unethical. Trade with companies such as Mehadrin provides capital that can be used for investment in the expansion of illegal activities. Furthermore, agricultural export companies routinely mis-label their produce and are known to market settlement produce as originating from inside Israel, misleading governments and retailers. 85 For these reasons, the most effective step that supermarkets, supply chain companies and governments can take to end support for Israel's illegal settlement enterprise is to altogether end trade with companies that operate in settlements, export settlement produce or participate in other violations of international law.

In 2012, The Co-operative Group, the UK's fifth largest food retailer, announced that it would end trade with all companies sourcing from settlements and immediately suspended trade with Mehadrin, Agrexco, Arava Export Growers and AdaFresh. 86

The retailer pledged to end trade with any other company found to be exporting from settlements.

Co-op members and customers had asked it to adopt the policy. Retailers and supply chain companies should now adopt this effective stance. In January 2013, Karsten Farms, a leading South African agricultural company, severed its relations with the Israeli agricultural company Hadiklaim, and also undertook not to enter into any future relations with any Israeli entity complicit in the illegal Israeli Occupation of Palestine. 87

Governments have in recent years taken action against corporate complicity with Israel's violations of international law. For example, Deutsche Bahn pulled out of an Israeli rail project in the occupied

Palestinian territory upon the request of the German government. 88 The Norwegian and New Zealand pension funds have divested from Israeli companies that are involved in the construction of Israel's illegal wall and settlements. 89

Governments should also take action against corporate complicity relating to Israeli agricultural exports. Regulation could be introduced that bans the import of any products from companies sourcing or exporting from settlements.

Alternatively, governments could issue voluntary guidance calling on retailers not to trade with companies exporting settlement products.

23Palestinian agricultural organisations and civil society networks call for ending international trade with Israeli agricultural companies

Published 9 February 2013

We, Palestinian organisations and unions representing farmers struggling for their right to their land and to food sovereignty, urge international civil society organisations to build effective campaigns and work towards ending agricultural trade with Israel that finances and rewards the destruction of Palestinian farming.

For Palestinians, farming is tied to Palestinian identity, history and resistance to Israel's illegal occupation. Palestinian farmers face the brunt of Israel's land confiscations, demolitions and theft of water. Farmers who still have access to land and water face systematic restrictions and violence. The siege of Gaza prevents farmers from accessing basic equipment and has made exports of fresh produce almost impossible. Farmers and fishermen regularly come under attack from the Israeli military.

Israeli agricultural export companies such as Mehadrin and Hadiklaim participate in Israel's colonisation of Palestinian land by using stolen Palestinian water and growing cash crops for export markets in illegal settlements established on land in the occupied Palestinian territory, from which Palestinian farmers have been driven. Such companies also profit from the siege on Gaza. The booming international trade with companies that operate in and export from settlements enhances the viability of Israel's illegal settlement enterprise. It also encourages and finances the expansion of settlements and the continued dispossession of Palestinian farmers.

We urge organisations and activists upholding human rights principles and the right to food sovereignty to work with us to develop campaigns aimed at ending the trade in settlement produce. The most effective way of doing so is to follow the lead of the Co-operative supermarket in the UK which decided in 2012 not to trade with any company that sources produce from Israel's illegal settlements. We call for an end to all trade with Israeli agricultural companies that are complicit with Israel's system of occupation, colonisation and apartheid.

24We echo the call made by leading Palestinian human rights organisation Al-Haq for states "to comply with their customary international obligations, by banning produce originating from Israeli settlements in the OPT." i Because Israeli companies routinely mislead governments and retailers about the origin of their produce, and because any trade with Israeli companies operating in settlements de facto sustains and supports these settlements, we call on states to consider banning trade with Israeli companies exporting from settlements or issuing guidance recommending that retailers avoid trade with such companies.

We reject any suggestion that the reality that Palestinians are sometimes left with no choice but to export fresh produce through Israeli companies or work in illegal settlements is a reason not to take action to end international complicity in human rights violations. Helping us to break the chains of dependency by holding Israeli companies to account and working with us to export to world markets via socially responsible and law-abiding companies is the most honest and effective way to contribute to our struggle and our sustainable development.

As the global food system has been shaped in the narrow interests of large multinational corporations, millions of farmers and indigenous people have faced exploitation and the destruction of their communities. We stand in full solidarity with all those who are also fighting for the right to their land and the freedom to make their own choices about food production, trade and social and environmental sustainability.

Let us join together in a struggle against occupation and dispossession, and for freedom, justice and equality.

The TOP 4 CANCER COMPANIES!!!

1. SodaStream

SodaStream manufactures a home carbonation machine that allows consumers to make their own soda. The company was the largest factory in the West Bank and employer of hundreds of Palestinians. However, the BDS movement urged a boycott of the company that labeled its products as “made in Israel” until its factory was moved out of the disputably Palestinian territory. The company moved to Lehavim in 2014, though company officials insist the relocation was not because of the BDS boycott, The Independent reported.

2. Ahava Cosmetics

“Beauty secrets from the dead sea,” reads the label on all Ahava products. However, according to BDS-inspired site, Stolen Beauty, “the real secrets it keeps are an ugly truth” of stealing from Palestinian territories. While “bathrobe brigades” boycotting the cosmetic products have had success in parts of Europe and Canada, Marylanders boycotted the boycott and bought a Silver Spring Ulta’s entire inventory of Ahava products in 2010, according to The Jerusalem Post.

Be Heard: Should the U.S. Cut Back Israel Support? Vote Here

3. Eden Springs

The BDS movement boycotts Eden Springs water because the company allegedly “steals water from the Salukia spring in the occupied Syrian Golan, where it is bottled in the illegal Israeli settlement of Katzrin,” says the movement’s website. The campaign got the brand’s water booted off of several Scottish campuses.

4. Golan Heights Winery

Although the winery claims to be located in Israel, Palestinians claim Golan Heights is their territory. As one of Israel’s biggest exporters, Golan Heights Winery has felt little effect from the BDS protest. In fact, sales of the wine in Europe went up 20 percent in 2014, Arutz Sheva reported.

Eden Springs Water: Think Before You Drink

A report by BDSlist.org

With today's colossal corporations that span the globe, it can be confusing to identify products that should be subject to BDS, the international campaign using Boycott, Divestment and Sanctions to compel Israel to abide by international law. One such product is Eden Springs Water.

An Israeli company, Eden Springs delivers over 680 million litres of water across 18 countries, making it one of the world's leading providers of bottled water in the workplace. Despite its name, however, this lucrative corporation did not begin as a pristine gift from nature; it began and continues to operate as an illegal occupation of the Golan Heights. Read More

Moroccanoil — Israeli beauty products that

glamorize apartheid

By Sarah Irving

This post is inspired by my umpteenth conversation with a friend who's been shocked to find out that Moroccanoil — a hair treatment whose bright turquoise publicity material seems to grace half the beauty salons in Britain — is actually Israeli.

In fact, I've even come across people who actively sought out Moroccanoil, deceived by its name into thinking they were buying a North African product.

Yes, the argan oil that is a key ingredient to the product is from beans sourced in Morocco (apparently). And it is North African Arab and Berber women who have used the oil for many years as a skin and hair treatment.

But the product called Moroccanoil — and some other argan-oil based hair treatments — is actually manufactured in Israel Read More

Israeli dates

Nearly half of the illegal settlements in the Jordan Valley grow dates and it's their most profitable crop contributing significantly to their economic viability. That profitability involves illegal underpayment of Palestinian workers, exploitation of child labor and dispossession of Palestinian farmers from their land. Boycotting Israeli dates is one of the most direct ways to target illegal settlements. Read More

Wittingly or unwittingly, Israeli universities play a central role in sustaining the occupation. They are the face of Israel's democracy that serves to hide its dark colonial side. One could call it "university washing."

And the 10 least anti-Semitic, according to a new global ADL survey

The results are in: Of the 101 countries plus the West Bank and Gaza included in the Anti-Defamation League global survey released on Tuesday, anti-Jewish sentiment was found to be most prevalent in the Middle East and North Africa, with a staggering 74% of respondents harboring anti-Semitic views. All 10 of the world's most anti-Semitic territories, indeed, are in the Middle East and North Africa.

Below are the top 10 most and least anti-Semitic countries, culled from the survey, which based its findings on surveying 53,100 people from 100 countries worldwide.

1. West Bank and Gaza: The Palestinian territories were found to be the most staggeringly anti-Semitic in the world with a 93% overall index score. Among specific age groups, 92% of those between the ages of 18-49 were shown to have anti-Jewish views, and the figure jumped to 98% among those 50 and older.

2. Iraq: Trailing closely behind, Iraq reached an index score of 92%. While 10 of the questions on the 11-question survey measuring negative stereotypes were answered affirmatively by over 70% of respondents, only a third (33%) believed "Jews still talk too much about what happened to them in the Holocaust."

3. Yemen: With an index score of 88%, anti-Semitism was shown to be at its lowest — although still remarkably strong — among participants over the age of 50 (79%), as compared to those between the ages of 35-49 (92%), and those between 18-34 (89%). The statement with the largest consensus was “People hate Jews because of the way Jews behave,” with a 90% approval rate. Like Iraq, the statement least supported on the survey was the one about Jews talking about the Holocaust, with 16% of those interviewed agreeing with it.

4. Algeria: At 87%, Algeria tied for fourth place with Libya. Algeria showed a larger gender gap in opinion than the previous countries listed, with 92% of males, and 82% of females harboring anti-Jewish beliefs.

4. Libya: With an 87% index score, the two negative views of the Jews most espoused were the attribution of anti-Semitism to Jewish behavior, and that Jews pledged greater loyalty to Israel than their home countries, at 86% respectively. In 2011, Libyan Jew David Gerbi returned from exile in Italy and was met with protests when he tried to restore a synagogue in Tripoli.

6. Tunisia: At 86%, the Tunisians were more concerned with Jewish international “control,” than previous countries. 85% believed “Jews have too much control over global affairs,” and “Jews have too much power in the business world,” respectively, while 83% said that “Jews have too much power in international financial markets.” Earlier in May, a synagogue in Sfax was ransacked for a third time.

7. Kuwait: With a general score of 82%, the Kuwait results saw the gender gap enlarged even further, with 77% of females as compared to 85% of males endorsing the negative ethnic stereotypes.

8. Bahrain: The general score in Bahrain was 81%, however, the younger respondents until the age of 34 showed significantly lower levels of racism (77%) than their older peers (86%). Despite the anti-Semitism, the country's ambassador to the US from 2008 to 2013 was Houda Nonoo, a member of the country's tiny Jewish community.

8. Jordan: The negative stereotype most highly rated in Jordan, with a general score of 81%, was “People hate Jews because of the way Jews behave” at 84%. Despite signing a peace treaty with Israel in 1994, many in the country still oppose normalization with the Jewish state.

10. Morocco/Qatar/UAE: With an overall score of 80%, Morocco, Qatar, and UAE took tenth place. The older Moroccans were shown to be less racist than their younger counterparts (75% of those over 50, 79% of 35-49-year-olds, 84% of 18-34-year olds). Qatar, UAE tied in their scores on the following statements: “People hate Jews because of the way Jews behave” (82%); “Jews have too much control over the global media” (70%); Jews have too much control over global affairs (73%) and “Jews have too much power in international financial markets” (71%).

1. Laos: Boasting the lowest rates of anti-Jewish sentiment on the planet, Laos received an index score of 0.2%. The survey claim most supported at 4% was “Jews are more loyal to Israel than to [this country/to the countries they live in]”

2. Philippines: At 3%, like Laos, the question of Jewish nationalistic loyalty was most agreed with, with 10% of respondents voicing support for this assertion. Following closely behind, the statement that Jews have too much power in the business world garnered support among 9% of the population interviewed.

3. Sweden: At 4%, Sweden is the least anti-Semitic country in Europe. However, Jewish loyalty to the State of Israel over its home country garnered the support of over a quarter of participants in the survey (27%).

4. Netherlands: With a 5% index score, the Netherlands is nonetheless concerned, like those before it, with Jewish loyalty. One third of those asked agreed Jews are more loyal to Israel than the Netherlands. Furthermore, 20% believed the Jews talk too much about the Holocaust.

5. Vietnam: 6% of the country's citizens were deemed anti-Semitic in the survey. Overall, men were twice as likely to agree with the anti-Jewish claims than women (8% vs. 4%)

6. United Kingdom: At 8 percent, the UK beat the US ever-so-slightly. Like the European countries before it on this list, over a quarter of the UK respondents believed Jews to be more patriotic toward Israel than the UK (27%). Nearly a fifth of those surveyed said "Jews have too much control over the United States government" (19%).

7. United States: At 9 percent, nearly 1/4 of those surveyed in the US said the Jews talk too much about the Holocaust (22%). While in the US, 31% said Jewish were more loyal to Israel than the US, only 11% thought the Jews have undue influence on the American government.

7. Denmark: Neck and neck with the US at 9 percent, some 39% of Danes believe the Jewish commitment to Israel precedes that of its patriotism to its own state.

9. Tanzania: The only African country to reach the top ten, Tanzania scored a total of 12 percent. Thirty-two percent of those asked agreed that Jews have too much control in the international media, “don’t care what happens to anyone but their own kind,” and are more loyal to Israel, respectively.

10. Thailand: Israeli tourists can rest easy, as one of their most frequented tourist attractions lands the title of one of the least Jew-unfriendly countries. A mural at a university depicting Hitler alongside superheroes in 2013 drew wide criticism, but was blamed on ignorant students.
